Ficklin and Harper and Misses Yates, Wilson, Mills, Walsh, Price, Scholield and Phillips, and Mrs. Baggott, to that effect being present with the raport.

Mr. J. S. Beach briefly advocated the adaption of the majority report; he had, some time since, adopted Hotmes's readers to his own school after examining the "ludependents," and thought them far superior, their matter being less sensational and far greater promineace being given to Southern authors and come to the same conclusion.

Superintendent Carne thought those who bad to teach the books the best judges of what | State apportionment, due in December. they wanted. Had the teachers favored Holmes's he would have concurred in the maonly report. He had had thirty one years experience in teaching. Mr. Beach probably sars, he thought the judment of the ladies now doing so better. He had, however, careregards the lower numbers, he thought the teachers right. The matter in the ladepend ent series, he thought, much more likely to in terest the pupils and make them good readers.
